DRINK AND DIE.

BY H. CAMPBELL.

Go to the dram shop, graceless fool,
You empty-headed gudgeon;
And drink and die, as die you must,
By pistol, knife or bludgeon.

Drink, if you wish to perish young,
You cannot perish younger;
And if you are not killed to-day
You'll live a fortnight longer.

Drink and a murderous, vengeful set
Have sighted you and found you,
Knives gleam, clubs wave, and pistols crack,
And death is all around you.

Drink, and some Cyclops hunt you down,
You're mauled and kicked and battered;
Drink, and a rock is on the wing
Your jaw-bone's mashed and shattered.

And in the halls of justice even,
They'll shoot you down like vermin
In self-defence? so near the bench,
Your blood will stain the ermine.

And they who cause these bloody scenes
Look on with eye complacent,
As if their dark, nefarious work
Were legal, right and decent.

TOM'S SISTER.

BY ESTHER SERLE KENNETH.

"Oh!"

A slender girl transfixed before a pool of lilies. She had come upon them suddenly and unexpectedly, the shining, luminous spot, just below the bank where she was lightly strolling, swinging her shade hat and trilling "Lord Ronald" at the top of her sweet, shrill voice.

She had escaped from the home grounds, where she was usually under the authority of a governess, and tempted into the fields among the sweet clover and wild roses, she soon found herself roaming and singing in a very enjoyable state of liberty.

"Oh!" she cried, raising both snowy, jeweled hands, "I never saw anything so beautiful! Water lilies! I forgot it was June, and time for them. I didn't know there were any here, for that matter," looking about for a pole. "I mean to get some, I do, if I go in up to the middle."

And lifting her dainty lace skirts, Clytie Amberly surveyed her pretty little slippered feet attentively, and in spite of her resolution, was forced to pause.

"No pole! But, you beautiful, great gold-hearted things, I will have you!"

And swinging herself down the bank, Clytie tip-toed around the edge of the pool, closely holding her snowy skirts, and softly hushing her arrested song, as she picked her way.

She had nearly circled the pool for the second time, and made a slight advance upon the lilies, when her pretty little dog, Romeo, uttered a sudden, shrill bark which startled and threw her off her balance. In her fear of falling into the water, she made a sudden turn and snatched at the boughs of a tall linden bush, and simultaneously an "oh!" of pain instead of pleasure broke from her lips. She had sprained her ankle. She sank down upon the grass, uttering little moans of pain and wringing her hands.

The pain was so intense she did not notice the increased barking of the dog, who resented the approach of a stranger upon the scene—a tall, blue-eyed, brown-bearded gentleman, who sprang down the bank, leaped over a fallen log and bent over the bowed little figure.

"You have met with an accident. Can I be of any service to you?"

Clytie started and looked up to him with two beautiful eyes of anguish.

"I—I have turned my ankle—I think it must be broken. I—I don't know what to do."

"Ah!" with an expression of acute sympathy, "that is bad. Where do you live?"

With a blush of mortification burning up through the pallor of her face, Clytie made a motion toward the gray walls of Ravenswood, which glimmered through the trees across the field—the old estate which was the very headquarters of pride.

Her father was proud; her mother was proud; her sister Victoria was the very quintessence of pride.

What if they were to see her straggled off in some lonesome field with a sprained ankle, and a stranger stopping to take pity on her!

She struggled to rise. "Never mind, don't trouble yourself," she stammered; then an almost delirious moan followed, and the delicate lips grew as white—the lilies were never whiter. "Oh, what shall I do?" she cried desperately.

"It is not far, let me carry you," said the stranger.

Whatever impression he may have hastily formed of the small sufferer, whose blithe singing he had been secretly enjoying fifteen minutes before, he was destined to behold now a most indignant little maiden.

"Do you think I am a child?" she cried. "I am sixteen years old."

"I can't help it if you were a hundred and sixteen," he said. "There is no other way."

He took no further notice of the crested little head and flaming cheeks, but measured with his eye the distance to Ravenswood, both by the road and across the fields. The very gentle way in which he had spoken and his matter of fact answer quelled pretty Clytie's indignation as nothing else could have done.

"I think I will follow the field path," he said, and stooping, he lifted her gently, and set forth so steadily and with such perfect ease, Clytie experienced a feeling of mingled shame and gratitude.

"I am sorry to give you so much trouble," she murmured, as they approached a side gate at Ravenswood.

The stranger's eyes, which had been searching the prospect before him—the stately walls of the mansion, the old yews and towering elms of the park, dropped suddenly upon the pale little thing in his arms. So pretty and contrite the young face, he was certainly more than human or he could not have refrained from kissing the soft, dimpled cheek, almost hidden in his breast.

"It was a dangerous place for you to be in alone," he said.

"Yes, it was. I do not often walk alone," replied Clytie, remembering who she was.

They had passed through the gate, and were crossing the lawn, when the stranger encountered a young lady, petrified with surprise. She had risen from a rustic seat and stood holding back her rich silk dress and fixing a piercing gaze of astonishment upon the two.

"Victoria!" cried Clytie, in an appealing voice.

"Is it you? Is it really you, Clytie Amberly, brought home in the arms of a strange gentleman?" continued her sister, in tones of indignant rebuke. "Can I believe my eyes?"

Poor crippled Clytie's desire to be put down was so evident that the stranger released her, though she was obliged to seize his wrist for support.

"I sprained my ankle. This gentleman was so kind—" she began, when the stranger with his disengaged hand raised his hat.

"Pardon—allow me to introduce myself, Roy Rodman, an artist of New York."

Victoria quite overlooked this courtesy, except to address her sister more severely.

"Clytie, you know papa forbid you making the acquaintance of strolling artists last summer. Here comes your brother. He shall hear of your disgraceful conduct!"

Thomas Amberly, jr., came sauntering across the lawn, and approached the group with an expression of surprise.

"Victoria—what's the matter, Clytie? Why, Roy, my dear fellow, how delighted I am to see you! Perfectly charmed! But what's all this about? Clytie's hurt, and you brought her home? A thousand thanks! Take my arm, Clytie. Can't walk? Well, you're not much to carry. Come to stay all summer, haven't you, Roy? I tell you the sketching around Ravenswood is prime!"

And easily carrying the white-robed form of his little sister, Tom led the way to the house.

Victoria realized by this time that Mr. Rodman was somebody, and hurried, with all possible speed and tact, to overcome her error.

"Pardon my impoliteness, the occasion was so peculiar, and I was so excited! It was only last summer an artist saw Clytie out walking with her governess, and actually had the presumption to ask her permission to make a sketch of her. Papa was very angry."

"Certainly, you are very excusable," replied Roy, with a faint smile. "Allow me to remark that I think the artist was, too, Miss Amberly."

"We considered it very impertinent," she responded, loftily.

If Roy Rodman admired Clytie, Victoria was no less a study to him.

She was very handsome, and evidently considered the earth hardly good enough for her to walk upon. To be an Amberly was, in her mind, to be exempt from all the vulgar uses of life.

Like the lilies of the field, she toiled not, neither did she spin. She entertained few. She despised everybody. Her idiosyncrasies, however, allowed her to accept of a very few talented persons, and it was her ambition to marry an artist.

Imagine, then, her annoyance at having probably created a prejudice against herself in the mind of the most distinguished artist she had ever known—for Tom soon informed her of Roy Rodman's success.

"Magnificent artist, Victoria! and rich and of good family. A very good match for you. Artists always like handsome wives.

Tom was a very good fellow.

"I made such a mistake at first," admitted proud Victoria, "I am afraid he will never like me."

"Oh, Roy has the best disposition in the world. He'll forgive anything. Go in and win, Victoria."

And Victoria was fain to take her brother's advice.

She made Ravenswood very delightful for the artist.

Man of the world as he was, he had never seen a more beautiful home. All was luxury, taste and comfort.

Victoria was the most charming of mistresses, and very frequently she would beg Mr. Rodman's arm for a stroll in the garden or a promenade up on a moonlit plaza.

At first he seldom saw Clytie. She was purposely kept out of the way. Victoria considered that she was sixteen now, and dangerously pretty. She was aware that her mature brunette beauty had not half the charm of "that child's" gentle brown eyes and golden hair, and Clytie was denied the drawing-room on a thousand pretexts.

But Victoria could not control the great out-of-doors so well, and when Clytie walked in the fields with Miss Matthews, Rodman often went sketching that way, and gathered for her the perilous water lilies; later, sweet, white honeysuckles, and, in the autumn, artistic purple vines and scarlet leaves, with which she wreathed herself as she chatted merrily.

And then he asked leave and obtained permission to paint all that young loveliness.

Victoria was always present at the sittings, and was very fascinating, yet she could not eclipse the younger's sweetness.

At length, Mr. Rodman's departure was decided upon. He had made many false starts, been persuaded by Tom's protests against it and Victoria's urgings to stay twice as long as he had at first intended.

Up in her chamber Clytie was musing with a strange new light in her eyes, when Roy asked old Mr. Amberly for a private interview.

"Perhaps you will think it a very ungrateful turn for your hospitality, Mr. Amberly," he said, "but I have fallen in love with your daughter, and covet possession of the king's treasure."

"Well, well, I am satisfied," replied the old gentleman. "You will make Victoria a good husband. She was always fond of artists, and will make a very gratifying marriage, I am sure."

"I do not mean Victoria, but Clytie."

"Clytie!"

"She is young, but I will wait willingly two years more, if need be. You must not refuse me Tom's sister, Mr. Amberly," referring to the friendship between the two young men, which had greatly delighted Tom's father.

"Refuse you? No! But I wish it had been the other," groaned the old man, thinking of Victoria's temper when crossed.

But there was no help for it. The young lady's passion, when informed of her disappointment, was, I have been informed, a fearful thing to see; but the world wagged its own way in spite of her indignant protests.

In less than a year Roy Rodman married Clytie and took her to Rome; and Victoria is waiting for another "stroll-artist."

In Memoriam of Katie H. Woodward.

The living have many duties to perform toward the dead. Many duties, too, of a pleasant nature, brought into existence by a sad necessity. Monuments, cenotaphs and obelisks are erected with the hands of wealth, gratitude or affection to tell the living of the great acts of those to whom they are dedicated. Sometimes the shaft of death strikes those over whose remains no costly mausoleum can be built, but, beneath the green sod in some quiet country or village cemetery is laid to rest those whose lives were so pure, so sweet, as loving and as true; and whose gentle voice, tender touch and loving smiles are missed as much as any of those to whom the open hand of private opulence, or public generosity had erected magnificent tombs.

Death is sad at all times; when old age steps into the expectant grave, or strong middle life is summoned, we all stop and shudder, and clasp our hands in thoughtful sorrow; but when youth, lovely, promising, hopeful youth passes into that eternal sleep, the heart weeps, the head is bent and uncovered in the awful presence of death, death that knows no person, no time, no place.

Katie Woodward, after thirty days of lingering sickness, gave her sweet spirit to God, and on the 20th of August, 1883, just as day was beginning to throw his light upon the earth, she received her crown of glory and her harp of gold, and joined the choir of angels as they sing His praises around His throne.

Katie H. Woodward, daughter of Wm. T. and Lou D. Woodward, at the residence of her grandfather, W. H. Paul—where she had been carried a few days before her death—in Morley, Mo., sweetly, calmly breathed her last upon earth.

Just crossing the threshold of lovely young womanhood. Just as the duties of life were beginning to unfold themselves to her, just as her sweet disposition and sunny nature was beginning to round up with her body into God's most perfect work—a good woman, just as she was stepping into her 15th year the fatal summons came, and father, mother, brothers, grandparents, and he to whom she had plighted her first and purest love, stood heart-broken, and anxiist their wails of sorrowing anguish her spirit quitted earth forever, but her memory, like the perfume of sweet incense, will long remain to remind them of her loveliness and purity.

Words of consolation and sympathy fall far short of soothing the hearts of those thus torn and wounded, but the memory of Katie's gentleness will in time soften and soothe what the voice of friendship cannot now do.

Lovely in person, gentle in manner, kind in speech, affectionate in disposition, it would have been well if she could have been spared to those who loved her, especially so to him to whom she had promised her life, her light, her work. But God's will be done. She can be seen again in Heaven, where through the grace of God we can behold her a perfect angel, and there forever enjoy the full sweetness of her company.

Who Does the Shooting at Night?

The nights are made hideous with the resounding of fire-arms in the streets. It is dangerous to walk abroad, or even to step out of the house after dark. For some time one or two shots only could be heard during a night, but recently a regular fusillade is kept up throughout the greater part of almost every night. It has been made a penalty to the amount of five dollars by the municipal authorities to fire a pistol shot. If the parties doing the shooting can be overtaken the exchequer of the town might be very materially reinforced, as the number of shots at five dollars a piece would not be less than $500 a week. Who will catch them for half the profits?

Joseph Mulhattan to His Friends and Patrons. Greeting.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 1st, 1883.

Dear Friends:—It affords me great pleasure to inform you that I have returned from a very romantic and highly successful tour through the wilds of Texas and Mexico, and it is now my intention to remain in the "White Settlements." I have therefore accepted my old position with the old reliable, enterprising, low-price hardware house of Messrs. Hart & Co., whose prices no other house can beat and yet live. I will remain in the city during the Ex position, and after that will go out on the war-path with paint and feathers, carrying the hatchet over the same old route, and will be prepared, as in the years gone by, to give you the very lowest rock bottom prices, and the benefit of fifteen years experience in the business I hope to receive a continuation of the very liberal patronage you so kindly bestowed upon me in the past, as it is my intention to do even better for you than I ever did before. "Upward and onward" is my motto. Hoping to hear from you, and to have you call and see me at the old stand when you come to the city, I remain as ever,

Your friend,
JOSEPH MULHATTAN.

Running a Newspaper.

AN exchange says: A paper to be first class must receive first class patronage. First-class patronage consists in every subscriber paying his subscription in advance—promptly the job department instead of sending the work to foreign offices and in various ways giving the paper your support. Giving a paper your moral support is taking and reading it, and not paying for it, will not do. Moral support we never knowed to run newspapers; moral support cannot be utilized when ink and paper bills are to be paid. The men who work upon newspapers are human, and enjoy corn beef and cabbage as well as other people. The atmosphere in this locality contains a large amount of ozone and is very bracing, scenery very grand and picturesque but nevertheless it seems to be one of nature's laws that one can't pay for printing material with ozone, or feed workmen on beautiful scenery.

CHOLERA!
PROF. DARBYS
Prophylactic Fluid.
The Most Powerful Antiseptic Known.
Will PREVENT the CHOLERA.

It Destroys the Germs of Disease

It has fact established by science that many diseases are introduced by putrefaction, which reproduces itself & propagates the disease in ever widening circles. These diseases generate contagion and fill the air with death. Such is that dread Terror ASIATIC CHOLERA which is now devastating the Eastland nations, on its mission of death rapidly towards our shores. Other diseases of the same sort are Diphtheria, Typhoid Fever, Scarlet Fever, Small-pox, Measles, Yellow Fever, Erysipelas, etc. All these generate contagion. Other diseases—Fever and Ague, etc., arise from contagion which promises of plagues, miasmic, miasmic influences and unwholesomeness.

All these diseases can be cured only by stopping the production of Disease Germs and destroying those already produced. Both these results are accomplished by the use of Prof Darbys preparation of Bermeo Acid and Chlorine known as DARBYS PROPHYLACTIC FLUID.

It Purifies the Atmosphere.

Its exposure in a sick-room, Cellar, Closet or Stable purifies the atmosphere and destroys any thing disagreeable and foul.

Taken internally it Malarial Fever, etc., purifies the Stomach, giving it tone and healthy vigor. It is thus that it cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia when used as a Lotion it destroys all stopping the production of Freckle and Rhubarb producing germs, leaving the skin clear, white and transparent as that of a little child.

It renders all it comes in contact with Pure and Healthy.

Spaces does not permit us to name many of the uses to which this great Germ-destroyer is applicable. Ask your druggist for printed matter descriptive of its usefulness, or address

THE HERALD.

JOHN P. BARRETT, - - EDITOR

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12, 1883.

WE wonder should we name our paper "trouble," if so many would borrow it as do now.—Post.

THERE is a Democratic gain in the General Assembly of fifteen. The Assembly will be composed 121 Democrats and 16 Republicans.

A GOURD, used as a canteen during the Revolution by a soldier has just come to light out in Arkansas. It is proposed to place it in the Exposition at Louisville.

WE are not given to praising Democratic literature, but candor compels us to confess that Gov. Proctor Knott's inaugural address reads like one of Col. Morrow's statesman-like speeches.—Danville Tribune.

"Candor compels us, etc.," is good. It is only after a defeat that you seem to be troubled with candor.

DORSEY'S revelations of Republican campaign corruption in Indiana is still the chief diet of the Republican managers. They are obliged to take it though they swear that Dorsey is a liar. No one "who knows" has been yet bold enough to prove Dorsey to be anything but a truth teller. It may be spite for Dorsey to tell all he knows, but he evidently knows what he tells. More's the pity on it.—Democrat.

THE crowd to witness the inaugural ceremonies was by far the largest ever assembled at Frankfort. The State House grounds and the street in front were packed with people, and it was decidedly a grand occasion. The presence of the State militia, the beautiful procession representing the business interests and the city departments, added greatly to the spectacle. Flowers and evergreens were everywhere to be seen, flags were flying, drums beating, and cannons booming. The whole thing was admirably arranged and conducted, and Frankfort has reason to be satisfied with the part the took in making the day an attractive and memorable one.—Yeoman.

AN editor to whom a subscriber came in grumbling about his subscription price being too high in comparison to the "city papers," put these questions in the next issue: Do the city papers give you home news? Do they contain notices of your schools, churches, meetings, improvements and hundreds of other things of interest which the local papers publish without pay? Do they say a word calculated to draw attention to your own town and to aid in the progress of your own vicinity. Answer these questions, and then determine for yourselves whether the city or local paper is deserving of your support first of all.

IT is understood that a decided move will be made against the gambling houses of Louisville, now that there is a chance to break them up by enforcing the collection of fines. During Blackburn's administration they escaped by only paying the Commonwealth's Attorney his fee. Not a single fine was paid into the treasury by the fraternity in Louisville during Blackburn's term. Governor Knott has placed himself on record in his inaugural as opposed to such remissions, and the law will be rigidly enforced if the parties are properly prosecuted and convicted. It is believed the law itself is adequate to meet the evil. The difficulty heretofore has been in enforcing it.

JESSIE BUCKNER, who figured so prominently in the Thompson-Davis tragedy at Harrodsburg, this State, and whose gossiping tongue brought about that tragedy, and caused the death of a man whose guilt was never established but by her testimony, was caught recently by Phil. H. Thompson, Sr., in a bath-room of his house with a nephew of his. It is said that old man Thompson ordered both to leave his house at once and forever, and that the irate Jessie drew a knife and threatened to cut his "liver and his lights" out, but she emigrated all the same, and it is now said of her that she is going to New York and will go on the stage. She is said to be beautiful, but as cold and unfeeling as a statute, and the killing of Davis by Congressman Thompson was caused by her. In the light of recent events and developments concerning this cold, cruel woman, Thompson ought to be tortured with remorse for killing Davis and doubts as to his real guiltiness.—Madisonville Times.

THE refusal of Capt. Sheldon to yield possession of the Land Office to the newly elected Register is an act of such extraordinary character that the comments upon it are general. A rumor prevails that his course is taken under the advice of prominent lawyers and officials, but thus far the public has been utterly unable to see upon what good ground he can assume the risk which such a course involves, if the law with regard to the usurpation of an office is applicable to his case. It is not asserted that he will undertake to act as Register, any further than to retain custody of the books and papers, which is clearly the duty of that officer, and it remains to be seen whether a court of competent jurisdiction will consider that a sufficient "holding and exercising" of the office to render him liable under the following:

General Statutes, page 351, section 1.—If any person shall usurp any office established by the Constitution or laws of this Commonwealth, or shall knowingly hold and pretend to exercise such office after his election or appointment thereto shall have been declared by a court of competent jurisdiction illegal or void, or after his term of office has constitutionally and legally expired, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined in a sum not less than $500 nor more than $1,500.

TWENTY SEVEN thousand three hundred and eighteen deaths have been reported from cholera since its outbreak in Egypt.

IF the cards are handled dexterously, Hon. James A. McKenzie would become a formidable aspirant for the U. S. Senate. He would have the united and enthusiastic support of this Congressional District, and to a degree that of Western Kentucky. It can be calculated with equal certainty that he would get a strong following from the Knott element throughout the State. This strength would give him a strong position in the fight, and the halo that now encircles his reputation, which brightens by the hour, and his irresistible personal charms and address and his rare power to organize and enthuse his forces would render him a foeman worthy of the steel of any man who will aspire to the Senate. Mr. Knott will not aspire, and unless Hon. John Ti. Carlisle does, there is a very favorable probability that Mr. McKenzie can be elected as Gen. Williams' successor. Whether it is his desire to re-enter the arena of public life or his ambition to be elected to the Senate, we do not know, but should he be prevailed upon to make the race, he will find the fidelity and the admiration and the zeal of the Second District to have grown and solidified during his retirement, and that she will die in the last ditch for United States Senator.—Providence Chauncy.

The Senatorial Race.

The Courier-Journal mailed to every Democratic member of the next Legislature a postal requesting their position in the Senatorial race, and received direct answers from 17, as follows: Carlisle, 11; Williams, 3; Blackburn, 2; McKenzie, 1.

Exit Blackburn.

The State breathes freer. A sigh of relief went up from all over the State as Blackburn went out of the gubernatorial office. He went in on a high tide of popularity and came out on a high public disgust. He is considered by the people generally, almost universally, to be the greatest possible failure as a Governor. Many consider him a daft old man in many respects. That he did the State an infinite harm there is no reasonable grounds for doubting. His ten per and lack of education unfitted him for the position. He went wrong from the beginning, and never could get right. He must have been badly surrounded by men of stronger minds than his own. That he was played upon may be true, but it in no wise lessens the censure that has fallen upon his reckless and luckless administration.—Ex.

A Tribute.

William McDowell Fogle, son of Hon. McDowell Fogle, of Casey county, and only brother of our fellow-townsman, J. E. Fogle, died at his home in Middleburg, Casey county, on the 3rd of September, 1883. Mr. Fogle, although young, was one of the most prominent among the enterprising business men of that community, and took an active part in every enterprise of a public nature. A strict member of the Baptist church, his life was that of a consistent christian. While the death of such a man is a loss to the community, to his family it is irreparable, and in their great bereavement they have the sympathy of all who knew him. We tender his brother the sympathies of this community.

High License.

The editor of the Hawesville Democrat has recently visited Arkansas, and was at Pine Bluff, which he speaks of as follows:

"A notable feature of Pine Bluff is her whisky trade. There are eight houses doing a retail business. The people are not otservingly dissipated. Drunkenness is rarely seen, yet the dealers pay a tax of twelve hundred dollars annually for the privilege of retailing spirits. The temperance cause has many advocates and the indications are that at the next election "local option" will be carried in that city and county.

We are informed that sixty-four counties in the State have banished the retail of spirits, and, that the entire State is threatened to be overcome by the temperance wave. With whisky throttled, and the State settled up, a grand future is in store for her."

Let's try high license here, and see how it will work.

Governor Blackburn's Work.

We have contended, and yet contend, that the indiscriminate and constant exercise of the pardoning power by the Executive works evil and only evil. It gives encouragement to crime, and life and immunity to disorder. It makes the bad and reckless bold in their devilitry, and places the life of peaceable and law-abiding citizens at the mercy of the depraved and murderously inclined element of the population. The statistics of murder in Kentucky during the four miserable years Governor Blackburn has been in office show an increase of one hundred and thirty-five per cent. We began keeping a tally for publication, but the exhibit was so appalling that we dare not carry out that intention. But here is the general result: In 1880 there were committed in Kentucky fifty-three murders (of all grades of homicide), or a fraction over one per week. In 1881 the total footed up ninety-six, or a fraction over one and three-fourths per week. In 1882 the total was one hundred and thirteen, or a fraction over two per week. And up to the 15th of August of the present year, 1883, one hundred and nine murders have occurred within the borders of this commonwealth, being a fraction over two per week for the entire year. And the vast majority of these homicides were committed for the most trifling causes.

This record shows that the Governor's pardons (and nine-tenths of the recipients of his clemency were murderers) increased and multiplied, that peculiar branch of industry he thus fostered and protected did correspondingly increase and multiply. There is no getting around, jumping over, or crawling under the fact that the oftener Governor Blackburn experimented in philanthrophy the oftener was the crack of the pistol heard in the State, and more frequent grew the murders.—Breckenridge News.

Knott's Inaugural Address.

We regret that our space does not permit us to give all of Governor Knott's inaugural address, but we give some of the most salient parts of it:

The pledge of fidelity to the Federal Constitution, and to the organic law of the State, which I have so frequently taken on other occasions, and which I am now to renew under circumstances of such extraordinary moment to myself, has always impressed me as one of the most important obligations that could be imposed on the human conscience. The primary cause for which constitutions are ordained is not so much to issue the performance of functions prescribed, as to prevent the exercise of authority withheld; not so much to restrain those who are governed as to protect them from usurpation and oppression, by carefully limiting the power of those who govern; and it is the constant and jealous observance of the limitations thus imposed which constitute the one indispensible condition upon which the perpetuity of republican institutions and the consequent preservation of popular liberty depend. Fealty to fundamental law is therefore, the paramount obligation to all who are entrusted by a free people with power, as it is the only guaranty of good government, and the ultimate security of sovereign citizenship.

This is especially so under a political system like our own; a system comprising two distinct governments, organized for different purposes; each supreme within the sphere prescribed by its own organic law; each subject to dangerous abuses resulting from a disregard of its constitutional limitations, and between which the most disasterous collisions arising from the same cause on the one side or the other, are constantly liable to occur, threatening alike the integrity of the Union and autonomy of its constituent commonwealths.

In conformity, therefore, to the leading requirements of my official oath, as well as with the plainest dictates of an enlightened patriotism, it shall be my constant pleasure, as it will be my highest duty, to support the Constitution of the United States and that of the State which has honored me with the most distinguished position known to its laws not only in their delegation, but in their limitations of authority, to cheerfully sustain the Federal Government in the legitimate exercise of all the powers delegated to it, and protect the Commonwealth to the utmost of my ability in those which are reserved to itself, contributing thus to the maintainence of the one in its entire constitutional vigor as the surest anchor of our peace at home and our safety abroad, and to the support of the other in all its rights as the safest administrator of our domestic concerns, and the surest bulwark against anti-republican tendencies."

LEGISLATIVE CO-OPERATION.

Believing, however, that the primary purpose of government is to secure "equal and exact justice to all men of whatever state or condition," and that all its regulations should be tested by that infallible touchstone, it may not be improper for me to say at this time that I will be glad to give to the Legislature my heartiest support in such a readjustment of our system of revenue as may be necessary to secure as far as possible a full and fair assessment of all the taxable property throughout the State, that every one who enjoys the blessings of its government may bear his just proportions of its burdens; the speedy and thorough collection of the revenue assessed, that all demands on the treasury may be promptly met, the public credit sustained, and the rate of taxation reduced; a rigid but enlightened economy in the expenditure of all public moneys, which will insure their faithful application to the purposes prescribed by law, and impose the lightest burden upon the people consistent with a fair compensation for the performance of official duties, without which it would be impossible to secure efficient service in any department of public employment.

I will be happy moreover to co-operate most cordially with that department in any such policy, consistent with the constitution, as will tend to increase the efficiency and extend the benefits of our system of common school education; increase our commercial facilities, develop our resources, promote our progress, check the efflux of our population, invite into our midst the industry, frugality, intelligence and wealth which are seeking homes elsewhere, and make our State with all its varied and matchless advantages, its central location in a grand community of commonwealths, its genial climate, its generous soil, its breadth of primeval forest, yet untouched by the woodman's ax, its wondrous water powers and its infinity of mineral wealth, what it should be, the home of the highest civilization and the goal of the industrious homigrant instead of a breeding ground for emigrants.

A GOVERNMENT OF LAW.

In exercising the various executive functions with which I am about to be invested I shall never forget that the government under which we live is essentially a government of law, and that I am bound, not only by the plainest requirements of the oath I am about to take, but by the very nature of our institutions and the obligations naturally arising from the important relation I am to sustain toward them, to discharge every official duty incumbent upon me strictly according to the sovereign will of the people, expressed in conformity to the constitution they have ordained; that the law is the warrant and the boundary of my authority; that beyond its limitations I have no discretion to go, and that its minutest requirements I have no right to neglect.

I shall not only be bound to observe the supremacy of the law myself, but it is made my paramount duty by the constitution to see that its mandates are obeyed by others; that the humblest shall enjoy the full benefit of its benign protection, and that the most exalted shall not be exempt from its power; that peace shall be preserved and disorder restrained; that innocence shall be secure under the sheltering aegis of justice and guilt promptly punished by her avenging sword.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

That transcendent duty, emphatically enjoined by a strict provision in the constitution of the Commonwealth requiring that the Governor "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed" I wish it to be clearly understood I intend to perform to the very utmost of my ability, at whatever inconvenience or hazard it may involve; and to the successful accomplishment of that purpose invoke not only the fullest support of the other departments of the government, but the active assistance, as well as the earnest sympathy, of an intelligent and patriotic constituency.

Thoroughly impressed with the importance of this great truth, and justified by the example of my predecessors on similar occasions, I trust it will not be considered improper for me to declare here distinctly and irrevocably, that in no case will I grant a pardon, or remit the penal consequences of a conviction of a criminal offense, unless I shall be fully satisfied upon thorough and impartial examination of all the circumstances that it would be unjust to the convict, or in some manner detrimental to the public interest to carry into execution the penalty of the law.

Governor Knott's Cabinet.

Governor Knott has announced the following appointments:

Secretary of State—Hon. James A. McKenzie, of Christian.

Assistant Secretary of State—Col. H. M. McCarty, of Paducah.

Adjutant General—Col. John H. Castleman, of Louisville.

Commissioner of Agriculture—Capt. John Davis, of Shelby.

Governor's Private Secretary—Judge C. E. Kincaid, of Louisville.

The Secretary of State is a resident of Christian county, a former member of the General Assembly, and a late member of Congress, having served two terms in the latter body, and having declined a third term on account of a failure in his vision.

The Assistant Secretary, Col. H. M. McCarty, editor of the Paducah Journal, is a political writer of wide acquaintance in and out of the State, having been at the head of several newspapers, and being specially noted as a well informed and vigorous correspondent from Washington.

The Adjutant-General, Col. John B. Castleman, a citizen of Louisville, is peculiarly fitted. He has held the highest rank in the State Guard nearly ever since its organization, and was in command of the militia at the time of his appointment.

The Agricultural Commissioner, Capt. John Davis, of Shelby, combines with all the qualities of a practical farmer the large experience of Circuit Clerk. He was a prominent candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals at the last election, and has very many friends throughout the State.

In selecting Judge C. E. Kincaid for his Private Secretary, the Governor has made a graceful recognition of capacity and fitness. Judge Kincaid is at present laboriously employed upon the Courier Journal. He will not take immediate charge, but will leave the office for several months in the competent hands of Col. Jacob Corbett, who served in that capacity for the retiring Governor.

Centertown News.

Editor Herald

Nearly four weeks of cool and drying winds makes a first class drought, and oh, the dust, the dust; but notwithstanding the dust and drought, times never seemed more lively. Business in this burg is moderately good.

The mill got out of tix somewhat last week, which caused a temporary suspension of business in that part of town, but while Mr. Stroud was taking the engine to pieces for the purpose of starting to Louisville with it this morning he discovered the cause of the trouble. They will make the necessary repairs and commence work at once.

Farmers are taking advantage of the dryness of things and have cut and burned a great deal of briars and bushes on their farms.

Wing K. James and his son Luther have commenced work on Leslie Igleheart's residence, and have got it quite on the way; if they don't have to wait too much for material they will soon have it completed.

Mrs. R. T. Barrett has been quite sick with pneumonia for two weeks, but is recovering now.

Aunt Garner Wade is quite sick with colic.

C. W. Hocker, who has been at his son-in law, Purdy Tichenar's, for nearly two months confined to his bed with a chronic form of shingles, has got well enough to be moved home, but is quite poorly at this writing.

Uncle Bob Rowe has been sick at Willie B. Rowe's, near Island Station, for several weeks. He thought he was well enough to be moved home, but soon after he got home began to have chills again, and is very complaining now.

Miss Stelle Jones has gone to Hardin county on an extended visit with friends and relatives.

Mrs. S. W. Jones received the sad intelligence of the death of her father, near Somora, Hardin county, by Saturday's mail; though she was expecting at any time to hear such news, the blow fell heavily upon her. She has the sympathy of every one.

Miss Maud returned a week ago from her Butler county trip, which she reports was perfectly splendid.

Miss Minnie Jones returned last week accompanied by her sister, Mrs. R. P. Durham, and family.

Uncle Buck Wade, Frank and Dick Tichenor and Bud Ross cut the little Bud Ross that was caught with four other little darkies in Owensboro stealing cigars) went over to see Wil Berry Tichenor at his new house on Nolin Creek a week ago. They experienced a very pleasant trip, and found Will Berry snugly ensconced on a good new farm in his adopted neighborhood. Point Pleasant neighborhood has lost a good citizen but No Creek has gained one.

Mrs. M. C. Ford and son Jasper went to Pleasant Ridge a week ago to visit relatives. Mr. Ford and daughter Clara spent a week at Pleasant Ridge only the week before.

Mrs. Mansfield Rowe, of Greenville, and Mrs. Henry Field, of your town, made a flying trip to this place Sunday the 2d inst.

Aunt Pattie Greenwood, of Hartford, has been spending the last two or three weeks among her many friends and relatives in Centertown and vicinity.

Sam B. Bishop, of Hartford, has been rusticating among his old time friends all round here the last week.

A. Dyer White, lady and Florence, R. P. Rowe and lady made hurried trips to this place last Sunday.

Nine couples of young ladies and gentlemen passed through this place yesterday en route to West Providence enroute from Point Pleasant neighborhood.

John M. Bishop is having a first-class residence put up. His brother Thomas is the builder.

Mrs. Sam Morton and her father, Uncle John Smith, made a flying visit to Island Station last week; they report a pleasant time.

Sam Morton has accepted a position in S. W. Jones' store.

J. T. Bennett bought a milch cow of Mr. Sowlers, of Beaver Dam, for $50; he sold recently $185 worth of hogs to a Mr. Sullivan, of McLean county.

A Lee Rowe, in company with L. P. Loney, attended the Exposition at Louisville last week; of course they saw all they could possibly.

Cass Morton and W. Rowe will go up Monday.

Prof. W. B. Rowe was in this town Saturday, mixing with friends and relatives.

W. A. Hill and family spent yesterday in this place.

Born, to the wife of Clate Stevens, on the night of the 27th ult., a daughter; their first born. To the wife of James C. Bennett, on the 2d inst., a son, and to the wife of John S. Leisure, on the 7th inst., a son.

More some other time. SNOOKS.

Heart Disease

CURED BY

Dr. Rush's Regulator,

FOR HEART TROUBLES.

Wm. G. Osgoodby, the well-known safe manufacturer of Buffalo, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Newark and Atlanta, Ga., says:

Office of Osgoodby's Improved Safes, 17 S. Broad Street, Atlanta, Ga., October 17, 1881.

Dr. Rush's Medical Association:

Dear Doctors—The three bottles of "Dr Rush's Regulator" I ordered were received by express last week. I have taken nearly one bottle and am thoroughly satisfied with the result. For over two years I have been troubled with sharp pain in my heart. My physician, upon examination, pronounced it enlargement of the heart, and was unable to give me any relief. The trouble grew worse until I had become convinced that I could not be cured. While in New York city last week I called upon one of the most prominent physicians there, who charged me $25 for an examination and then recommended your "Regulator." Knowing you to be a regular Medical Association, and not a patent medicine scheme, I ordered the three bottles. I have not been troubled since I commenced taking it, but shall continue and take the entire three bottles, so as to obtain a permanent cure. You have my sincere thanks.

Yours, gentlemen, very respectfully,

WM. G. OSGOODBY.

Dr. Rush's Regulator

has never failed to give relief. It has been used successfully for years in subduing the most stubborn cases of heart difficulties. A positive cure for Enlargement, Palpitation, Fluttering and Fatty Degeneration of the heart. Price $1 per bottle; six for $5. Sold by druggists, or sent direct by Dr. Rush's Medical Association.

SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and Ague, Malaria, and all Diseases caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with looseness; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough, and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption, the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleepless at night, take a dose and you will be relieved.

Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator in the House!

For, whatever the ailment may be, a thoroughly safe purgative, alterative and tonic can never be out of place. The remedy is harmless and does not interfere with business or pleasure.

IT IS PURELY VEGETABLE,

And has all the power and efficacy of Calomel or Quinine, without any of the injurious after effects.

A Governor's Testimony.

Simmons Liver Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am satisfied it is a valuable addition to the medical science.

J. GILL SHORTER, Governor of Ala.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Ga., says: Have derived some benefit from the use of Simmons Liver Regulator, and wish to give it a further trial.

"The only Thing that never fails to Relieve."—I have used many remedies for Dyspepsia, Liver Affection and Debility, but never have found anything to benefit me to the extent Simmons Liver Regulator has. I sent from Minnesota to Georgia for it, and would send further for such a medicine, and would advise all who are similarly affected to give it a trial as it seems the only thing that never fails to relieve.

P. M. JARDEY, Minneapolis, Minn.

Dr. T. W. Mason says: From actual experience in the use of Simmons Liver Regulator in my practice I have been and am satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine.

MAKE HENS LAY

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

As English Veterinary surgeon and Chemist, now located in this country, I have had much of the Horse and Cattle Powder sold here analyzed, and find it to be composed of cheap and worthless trash. He says that Sheridan's Condition Powders are worth more than all the Horse and Cattle Powders sold in this country put together. I therefore recommend Parsons' Purgative Pills as a valuable substitute for the Powders, and as being safe, certain and reliable. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Condition Powders. Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Parsons' Purgative Pills. Are put up in 1 pint foods. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 1 letter-stamps. I. S. JOHNSON & Co., Boston, Mass.

W. A. GIBSON, Caneyville.
MRS. NANNIE W. JONES, Horton.

PERSONALS.

Persons in town having visitors or any other item they would like in this column would confer a favor if they would inform this office. The town is not very large, but one hand can't get all over it every day and run a newspaper.

Persons visiting in town not seeing personal mention of themselves must remember the one they are stopping with did not feel interest enough in them to report at this office.

Mrs. Hatfield is visiting Mrs. A. P. Hudson.

Mr. Sylvester Haynes, living near Whitesville, was in town Monday.

Mr. C. W. Phillips, ex-sheriff, of Ellis' precinct, was in town Monday.

Mr. Warren L. Turns, of South Carrollton, was in town Friday afternoon.

Walter Allen has accepted a position in the grocery and saloon of Buck Collins.

Mr. Silas Joseph, of Lawrenceburg, was in the city the latter part of last week.

Mr. Wallace Rosson, living in the vicinity of Pattieville, was in town Monday.

Judge B. L. D. Bailey, of Morgantown, was registered at the Hartford House Friday.

We had a call from Mr. W. G. Fulkerson, wife, mother and sister of Slaty Creek, last week.

Messrs. B. P. Williams and J. C. Lynn, of Evansville, Ind., were doing the town last Wednesday.

Mr. J. C. Westerfield has moved to the dwelling belonging to Mr. J. M. Klein, near Hartford College.

Mrs. Hill, of Greenville, and Miss Nettie Duncan, of McHenry, were visiting Mrs. J. S. Vaught the past week.

Messrs. N. G. Stanley and S. H. Mitchell, of Griscom's Landing, Ky., were at the Hartford House last Wednesday.

Prof. M. H. Rhoads went to Rockdale Friday to see his mother, who met with a painful accident several days ago.

Mrs. E. A. Gordon and Mrs. Charlie Noel, of the Masonville neighborhood, Daviess county, are visiting relatives in Hartford this week.

Miss Helen Armendt has accepted a position in H. Small's Trade Palace. She will have special charge of the millinery department.

Isaac Sourbeer is in town. He came from Rosine, and the fact that he still wears the old Miles Orton what-is-it smile shows that he still in the ring.

Mr. G. S. Bean and wife, accompanied by Mr. John Phipps, are visiting friends and relatives at Rockvale, Breckenridge county, Ky., this week.

Little Maud Sanders, daughter of Dr. G. R. Sanders, of Centertown, spent last week in town visiting little Georgie and Daisy Kimbley. She visited the HERALD during her visit here.

Misses Effie Tichenor, Fena Render, and Varnia Bell, young ladies from the Point Pleasant neighborhood arrived in town on Monday morning, and enrolled as students of Hartford College.

Mr. M. F. Brinkman, of Owensboro, was registered at the Hartford House Wednesday night. He was en route to Glasgow, Ky., where he will enter upon his duties in the Government service.

—Dust, dusty, dustier.

—Thomas & Kimbley is headquarters for paints.

—The plank walks in Hartford need repairing.

—Hartford College is booming. New students coming in daily.

—Buck Collins took out license for his billiard saloon last Monday.

—Job work of all kinds done at this office. Give us your patronage.

—Remember that Tracy has the celebrated Farmers' wagon, the best wagon on wheels.

—Mr. R. C. Hardwick, has rented the privileges at the fair grounds for this fair.

—The flux epidemic in the Pattieville neighborhood is somewhat abating. No new cases reported up to this writing, and all those that have been sick are now reported convalescent.

—It is just three weeks until our Fair begins. We are glad to note that a good many citizens of the county are preparing stock for the same. Everybody should bring something for exhibition.

—Mrs. Wm. Hunter, of this place while stretching a clothes-line last week, fell and broke her thigh. Drs. Pendleton and Miller were called who set the bones, and at this writing she is doing as well as could be expected.

—Rev. Mr. Smith having made arrangements to preach another year at Beda, will also continue his labors at Hartford another year, preaching second Sunday in the month. Owing to the fact that the regular Presbytery meets in October there will be no services here that month. His next appointment will be the second Sunday night in November.

—Rain is needed badly in this section.

—A theatrical entertainment would prove a paying feature during fair week.

—Buy a "Black Hoss" cigar at Thomas & Kimbley's. They smoke delightful.

—Quite a number of new students matriculated in Hartford College Monday morning.

—This is the first month with an R, and the delicious bivalves on half shell are now in season.

—Liberal advertising insures success. Let your card be seen in every impression of the HERALD.

—The new Board of Trustees were sworn in Monday morning, and entered upon their duty.

—Extra fine quality Jersey Jackets just received and for sale at the price of common ones at Anderson's Bazaar.

—An infant of Mr. Haden Stites, living near Rosson's store, this county, died last Friday night of flux.

—Wanted, 500 bushels shelled bread corn at Hartford Water-Mills, for which market price will be paid in cash.

—A moonlight dance at the brick yard of Messrs. Williams would be the "proper caper" for the young folks just now.

—We invite the attention of our readers to the large, liberal advertisement of Anderson's Bazaar in this week's issue.

—The Italian scout and his little hand organ was grinding out "three tunes for a 'neckle'" on our streets last Friday.

—Messrs. Doyle & Greenwood are running their street-sprinkler. This should have been inaugurated several weeks ago.

—Prof. L. P. Lowry opened school Monday-week at McHenry with a large and flourishing school. Success is our sincere wish.

—Warren Barnett passed through town Monday morning with 141 head of sheep. He will ship from Beaver Dam to Louisville.

Just received at Anderson's Bazaar a lot of Jersey jackets at two dollars and fifty cents. Same quality sold at $2.75 earlier in the season.

—Mr. D. S. Duncan has opened a new livery stable at McHenry. Dave is an obliging gentleman, and his new venture will doubtless prove a success.

—Charlie Felix went to South Carrollton but concluded he liked Hartford College best and returned on Sunday last, and on Monday morning was enrolled as a student of Hartford College.

—One and one half bottles of Ely's Cream Balm, entirely cured me of hay fever of ten years standing. Have no trace of it for two years. ALBERT A. PERRY, Smithboro, N. Y. 36-4t.

—A Good Templars' Lodge could easily be organized in Hartford, and its "inside workings" made so entertaining to the members that it would become a fixture. What say you to such an organization?

—A protracted meeting is in progress at Goshen church. The result of the meeting so far has been two conversions and several penitents. The meeting is being conducted by Revs. R. C. Alexander and J. W. Taylor.

—These cool mornings and nights remind the average benedict that the season for overcoats draweth near. And he swears great oaths at the Italian "count" who traded his wife a plaster-of-paris angel for his last winter's garment.

—Buck Collins, in connection with his grocery and saloon, has opened a new and elegant billiard and pool room up stairs, and the patrons of this delightful retreat can now while away the hours pleasantly, and at the same time find anything to cheer the inner man. Give him a call.

—The steady increase in the number of students at Hartford College is not only gratifying to its friends but speaks well for the principal, Prof. T. M. Mourning, and his assistants. Fifteen new students were enrolled on Monday morning last, and still more are coming. Success to Hartford College.

—We call the attention of our readers to the "Famous New York Clothing House," corner Sixth and Market streets Louisville, Ky. This house of long and established reputation, is now offering to the public the greatest bargains ever before offered in the city. When you go to the Exposition don't fail to call and examine their immense stock.

—Several little negroes were detected in the act of stealing cigars from the wholesale liquor house of Geo. D. Mattingly & Co., in Owensboro last week. They were arraigned on the charge in the city court, but their cases were compromised by each receiving a sound lashing from their mothers in the presence of the crowd. This was a good move, and will doubtless prove more effectual than would have one or two years served in the penitentiary.

—The promiscuous shooting about town after nightfall still continues.

—Mr. S. B. Hay, the great spiritualist, will be in Hartford in a few days.

—The colored school at Hayti, taught by Miss Mary E. Wilcox, commenced Monday.

—Rev. Mr. Smith preached an able discourse at the Methodist church Sunday night.

—A child of James Carden, living near Rosson's store, this county, died last Friday night of flux.

—We have now ready for sale over 200,000 good brick.

37-4t WILLIAMS BROS.

—A little infant boy of Charles Campbell is very sick with brain fever. At this writing there is but little hope of his recovery.

—Read the programme on the outside of this week's issue of the re-union of Company A, 1st Kentucky Cavalry at Sugar Grove church, Daviess county, Ky.

—The citizens of Hartford have been feasting the editor of the HERALD on grapes. That's mighty poor brain food, but the editor stands up under it very well.—Litchfield Sunbeam.

—Mr. A. Goldshaw of Beda, called to see us last Monday. He was on his way to Louisville and Cincinnati, where he will purchase a large stock of goods for fall trade at his place. Persons in that vicinity will do well to await his arrival.

—"Bucker's Bend," in Hayti, was, we learn, prolific of a free-and-easy row among several colored parties Wednesday night, in which a saddle-colored moke struck his girl on the head with a stick. No further execution took place.

—Mr. H. B. Taylor, of the new dry goods firm of H. B. Taylor & Co., will leave this week for Louisville to purchase a stock of goods for the new firm. Those wishing something new and nobby in his line would do well to await his return.

—Professors Craig and Joy, violinists par excellence, made the air around the drug store of Z. Wayne Griffin vibrate with sweet sounds Wednesday night. Prof. Craig returned to his home in Owensboro Thursday, but Joy still lingereth in our midst. So mote it be.

—Mrs. J. S. Vaught has a fine milch cow about three year old, with young calf, for sale. Mrs. Vaught is milking one of the same stock which amply supplies her family and boarders—fifteen to twenty in number—with milk, besides making some butter. Anyone wishing a good cow cannot do better than to call and see for themselves before purchasing elsewhere.

—W. T. King has on hand and for sale a large stock of buggies, spring wagons and farm wagons, all of the very best make, which will be sold at the very lowest rate. Call and examine his stock before purchasing elsewhere.
37-2t

—Last Saturday eve Judge W. F. Gregory's was a scene of gayety for the little folks. The occassion was the celebration of Miss Parkie's birth day. We must say this little Miss is an anomaly so far as her admiration and love for the other sex is concerned. Her request was that in the invitations the little gallants were to be left out. And without any reserve whatever this goodly company enjoyed the music, dancing and refreshments to their hearts content. There is nothing more beautiful than the presence of the bright and happy smiles of the joyous little Misses.

NEW.

Just received at Z. A. Rosenberg's, dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, notions and furnishing goods. These goods will be sold extra cheap. Call and convince yourselves of it. Special LOW price on clothing.

—Died, in Morley, Scott county, Mo., Aug. 28th, of typhoid fever, Katie Helen, only daughter of W. T. and S. D. Woodward, aged fifteen years eleven months and twenty-two days. The subject of this notice was an interesting child from her earliest youth, always kind and obliging to every one. Her seat was never vacant in the house of God whenever she could be there. She also took great delight in the Sabbath school, which seemed to be her home. She loved her parents and little brothers devotedly and was a comfort to them in all their joys and sorrows. How sad the news to grand-parents, uncles and aunts in Kentucky, who were devotedly attached to her, and especially her grand ma, who almost idolized her, that Kate was gone. But such is life. Although death has taken her in the morning of life and our hearts are sad, we know that she is safe from all the sorrows of this life. No more we will see her lovely face nor hear her welcome voice, but hope to meet her in a world where sorrow is unknown and friends are never parted.

Dearest Katie thou hast left us,
And our loss we deeply feel;
But 'tis God who hast bereft us—
He can all our sorrows heal.

—There was frost in this vicinity Monday morning.

—A. Gee, Esq., will soon put in his annual appearance.

—A grand hop should by all means be given during the fair.

—Delightfully cool and pleasant nights are the rule now.

—The colored people gave a festival at Mattie Griffin's Saturday night.

—Hartford can boast of as many pretty girls as any town of her size in the Union.

—The burning of the kiln at Williams Bros' brick-yard nightly attracted many ladies and gentlemen last week.

BORN.—Sept. 9, 1883, near Beda, to the wife of Stephen Bennett, a daughter. Dr. Hoover was the attending physician.

—A number of parties from abroad have signified their intention of exhibiting their blooded stock at our approaching fair.

—They were the observed of all observable, and the little affair took place at the front gate Saturday night. Stolen kisses are said to be sweet.

—Several little fracases have occurred on our streets during the past week, but none of them were bloody enough to require personal mention.

—Mr. Wm. Park, living four miles below town, has been quite sick for sometime past, and at this writing but little hope is entertained of his recovery.

—Master Stirman Massie, of this place, has a bycicle every part of which was manufactured by himself. He may be seen daily on his two-wheeled vehicle spinning through our streets.

—Rubbish should not be thrown into the street and allowed to remain, but should be burned as soon as thrown out. Nothing more detracts from the beauty of a town than dirty streets.

—Owensboro has been written up by the correspondent of the Chicago Trade Gazette. Now if that correspondent wants to do the handsome thing let him treat Hartford in the same manner.

—Judge A. B. Baird's lectures at the Sabbath school grow more and more interesting each morning. The Judge is a pleasant, forcible speaker, and his lectures abound in a wealth of information.

—Gordon Payton, the colored porter of the Hartford House, picked up a five dollar bill on the streets last week, and promptly returned it to its owner, Mr. Shull, who was looking for it a few minutes thereafter.

—Mr. Dunnison, the proprietor of the Dennison Hotel, Cincinnati, has spent years of time and thousands of dollars in gathering works of art in Europe. The hotel shows with what success.

—Mr. G. Spurrier and family, of McHenry, moved to town last Thursday and are occupying Mr. R. J. Morris' property. Mr. Spurrier has located here on account of Hartford College, which he will patronize.

—Henry Schapmeier, son of Mr. C. F. Schapmeier, fell from an apple tree Saturday evening and broke his arm at the wrist. Dr. Baird dressed the wound and he is able to go about. The fall also bruised his mouth and face.

—To my old customers and as many new ones as may need anything in the Undertakers line, will find it to their interest to call on the undersigned and examine his stock, and will guarantee satisfaction in goods and prices. They will be sold lower than you can buy elsewhere. DAN F. TRACY.

—Died, an infant child of Mr. and Mrs. C. Roby, September 8th, 1883, aged three months and two weeks. The bereaved parents have the tenderest love and sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends. Their little treasure has been taken to a better and brighter world, there to await their coming.

—Mr. George Warren Taylor, living near Bell's Run church, brought us a pint of sorghum molasses last Thursday, made from his crop of cane, raised this year. It was manufactured by his brother, James T. Taylor. The molasses is clear and thick and shows that the maker understands the art of distilling sweets.

—Rev. G. J. Bean will preach the funeral sermons of Mrs. Joshua Barnard and two children at Point Pleasant September 3rd, 1883.

—By request, Rev. G. J. Bean will preach at Bethel church next Sabbath, Sept. 16th, the funeral of Mr. John Martin's children.

—The coal miners at McHenry and other mines on the C. O. & S. W. R. R. went to work again last Thursday, the companies giving them the three cents per bushel, but charging them an advance on powder, oil and house rent.

Marriage Licenses.

Notice Teachers.

The examination of teachers will be held on the last Friday and Saturday in September, instead of 1st Friday and Saturday in October. Changed only for October, F. L. FELIX, C. S. C.

Burial Robes.

Rev. G. J. Bean has in connection with his beautiful caskets, handsome burial robes for ladies and gentlemen. It would be impossible to describe to our readers the combined elegance, good taste and cheapness of these goods. A gentleman's robe consists of pants, coat, vest, shirt, collar, tie, cuffs and even the sleeve buttons at far less than a good coat will cost elsewhere. While the robes for ladies and children are even more exquisite, being made from the latest designs and of a soft cream or white cashmere, trimmed with folds or shirrings of satin, finished with bows and the finest of crape rushing round the neck and sleeves. As a tribute to our loved ones, nothing could be more gratifying to our feelings than to see them entombed in one of these, and with tender hands laid on the downy pillow inside the casket that matches the robe.

The public is invited to call and see these new style costumes for our dead.

Beda Items.

BEDA, KY., Sept. 7, 1883.

Editor Herald:

Hot, dry and dusty.

A rain is much needed here.

Dr. Howard and family, after two years stay with us, have moved to their new home on Rough creek.

Rev. Mr. Stevens and wife were visiting relatives here this week; also R. Stevens and wife. Such visits are much appreciated.

J. Lee Chinn has the erysipelas in his left arm, which is thought to be as bad a case as we ever have of that kind.

Mrs. Wm. Johnson, who has suffered from a severe spell of sickness while on a visit above Hartford, and attended by Dr. Hoover, of this place, is now at home near Buford and able to be about.

Miss Mollie Higgs, of Newville, has been visiting friends here for the past two weeks.

Prayer-meeting every Wednesday night.

Watermelons are a thing of the past, and the sad boys wear long faces.

A. L. Bennett does not mind his watermelons being stolen so bad, but he hates for them to break his tobacco in making their escape. Boys will get frightened.

Mr. Bennett has suffered much with sore eyes, but he is some better now.

We have heard it said that "carrying was half feed," and from the looks of some of the corn fields, carrying will be very necessary next season.

Apple-cuttings are very common and well attended by the young folks.

Stephen R. Bennett started for Florida last Monday, and will probably stay a short time. He will stay until—well I will tell you when he comes back.

More when it happens.

THE WESTERN UNION

Makes a Just Concession of Twenty Per Cent. Advance in Wages.

An order was issued to-day by the Western Union Telegraph Company increasing the hours of the night force at Boston thirty minutes per night, and providing that on and after September 1, all Sunday service performed by night operators shall receive extra pay at the rate of one-seventh of a day's pay for each extra hour and on this account a day's pay shall be determined by the number of working days in a month. This is received by the employes as an unexpected justice, and where a man is receiving $75 per month it will, in the average course of business, make a difference of about $15, and for others in proportion.

McLean County News.

Editor Herald:

Many moons have passed and many things have occurred since I have had the pleasure of looking over the familiar pages of the HERALD.

We met Mr. Berry Loney, wife and sister, of your county, at Mr. Frauce Wrigh's, of this vicinity, "Possum Trot." Mr. L. looks the picture of good health, and speaks in flattering terms of old Ohio, the banner Democratic county.

Mr. Willie White, of this county, is attending school in Ohio county, a pupil of Mr. Lee Loney, his old teacher. Mr. Loney taught here formerly and gave entire satisfaction.

Times will soon revive up a little, as paw-paws, grapes and "sich" like will be in season.

The recent storm did a great deal of damage a little north of this locality.

Crops are up to the average and various estimates are placed on tobacco, when put on the market.

Our section is healthy, and but for a few cases of brain fever with the children would be extremely so.

Our fair will soon be in trim again, and it's likely that they may do a splendid business, if all the talk one hears means business.

Climbing Made Easy.

Step by step we reach the hilltop,
Or scale the dizzy heights of fame;
If on the way we do not stop,
Or cowardly give up the game.
Through life there's many hills to climb.

Obituary.

Died, near Elm Lick, Ohio county, Mrs. Susanah Taylor, on the morning of the 29th of August. She was born in Ohio county on the 22d of January, 1803, and married Rev. R. C. Taylor in 1824, with whom she lived happily for 58 years, more than half a century. Few couples are spared to each other for such a long period.

Her father and mother came to this State from Maryland. Her name before marriage was Leach, daughter of Leonard Leach.

In her youth long distances intervened between settlements, immense canebrakes and tangled meshes of undergrowth characterized the forests and landscapes; in her youth those forests stretched away for miles and miles, uncheered by a single house or clearing; in her old age numerous farms, towns, churches and school houses occupy their stead. What wonderful changes have occurred in the long period of years over which her memory could wander.

She professed religion before marriage, and was probably a member of the church for 60 years.

Her life was pure and noble. She was ever kind and affectionate to all, exemplifying her christian profession by a steadfast obedience to all the commands of God. She labored faithfully in the Master's vineyard, and has been called to her reward. Of a truth, it it might be said, a mother in Israel has gone; gone to the sunny banks of eternal deliverance, there to greet the Master, whom she loved to serve, and the friends, children and husband who have preceded her.

She was laid away in the graveyard on the old farm called the brick house place; this place was her home for a long period of years. She was followed to her tomb by a large concourse of people, all sad and sorrowing that this was the last opportunity they would have of gazing upon the features of one they all loved so well. She was the mother of eight children, six of whom are living, and to them we would say, mourn not for her, for she has lain off the mortal body that was frail with old age, and clothed herself in the immortal vigor of her Redeemer's kingdom. Hop Bitters are the Purest and Best Bitters Ever Made.

They are compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion,—the oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other remedies being the greater Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use Hop Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Do not suffer or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

SEWING MACHINE!

Before You Purchase Elsewhere.

The only reason that we do not abuse it is because there is less trouble on it than any other machine sold. It is always in order, requires no extra skill to operate, of finest finish and best quality of material. No springs or cog wheels, bearings all case-hardened steel, self threading at all points, light, quiet running and improved treadle motion. Peculiar feed, stitch regulator and tension device. Its simplicity, strength and durability are wonderful.

There is not a shuttle in any machine so self threading. In a word, it is all that life long experience, every facility for improving a belief in a survival of the fittest and $5,000,000 can make it.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The September number presents a host of bright attraction, of which we can name only a few: The Treaty of Paris, September 1783, the French Stage, the Tea Commerce of New York, a sentimental journey to two homes of Edgar Poe, the Thames Embankment, and Nell Gwynn, are the prominent articles, each profusely illustrated. The exciting serial, the Beautiful Countess of Chdrville, is continued, and a new one commenced, True to Untruth, and there are a great many short stories, sketches, adventures, etc., by popular writers, of exceeding interest, together with poems of unusual merit. Amongst the contributors to this number are: J. E Rnutz Rees, E. Battersby, Amanda M. Douglass, H. Barton Baker, Lieutenant H. D. Smith, N. Robinson, Oscar W. Riggs, Henry Tyrrell, C. Rosetti, Audrey Frere, W. O. Stoddard, Phillip Bourke Morston, etc., etc. There are 128 quarto pages, and over 100 embellishments in each number, together with a beautiful colored plate frontispiece. A Merry Companion is the title of the present one. Price 25 cents, $3 a year, postpaid.

In Memoriam.

Mary Duke was born in the state of Tennessee on the 18th day of April, 1813, and when a small girl moved, with her parents, to Ohio county, Ky. She married J. Conditt in the year 1834, and by him had eight children—seven boys and one girl. She professed religion in her sixteenth year. She came, with her husband, to Jackson county, Ark., in 1855, and died here May 28th, 1883. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South in early girlhood, and lived an exemplary Christian life. She was faithful to her church, and loved her religion. She had more self-sacrifice about her than any person I ever knew. Many the time she has made herself sick cooking and at other labor in time of protracted meetings. Many are the lessons, I remember, she labored so earnestly to impress on the minds of her children—lessons of religious principles, good behavior, gentleness and industry. Dear brothers, let us ever try to bear in mind the religious truths she has so earnestly endeavored to instill in our minds. Dear brothers, relatives and friends, let us be prepared to meet the one we loved so dearly in another world. I feel I want to meet my sweet, sainted mother in the land of bright spirits. It seems sad—we have so many lonesome hours—but we think all things will work together for good. During her dying moments she shouted the praise of God, and said she was going home to sweet rest. I cannot help feeling that I would like to dedicate these few lines to her memory:

"I'm lonely since my mother died,
Though friends and kindred gather near;
I cannot check the rising sigh,
Or stay the silent, heartfelt fear.
Of earthly friends she was the best,
My erring youthful steps to guide;
Oh! do not smile because I weep—
I'm lonely since my mother died.

You may not deem it brave or strong
To let those tears so often flow;
But those who've lost a mother's love,
Can tell the pain of my sad woe.
Could I but call her back again,
And kneel once more down by her side,
I'll love her better than before—
I'm lonely since my mother died.

Oh! you who have a mother dear,
Let not a word or act give pain
But cherish, love her, as your life—
You ne'er can have her like again.
Soon, I hope, will be our meeting,
Then the gladness none can tell;
Who for me will then be weeping
When I bid the world farewell?"

L. M. CONDITT.

Tuckerman, Ark., July 12, 1883.

When you feel yourself gradually breaking down don't wait until you have taken to your bed. While you are still able to be up and about fight the grim monster disease by the use of proper restratives. The best remedy for malaria, indigestion, weak kidneys, constant fatigue, fits of dizziness, heart disease, short breath and other complications of a disordered system is Brown's Iron Bitters. Its magic influence in conquering diseases of an exhausted nature is most astonishing.

"Our Nation's Curse."

If the devotees of the god Bacchus would only stop and count the cost, methinks many would retrench in this joint of expenditure. Suppose a man takes but one drink a day, at a cost of ten cents. During a week he will spend seventy cents; for one month he will spend $2 80; for one year he will spend twelve times the amount, or $33 60, or, if three drinks per day, just two thirds as much—so that it all these dimes were put into the savings bank, in ten years he would have a considerable sum by him. And, again, I will quote from the National Journal: "Estimates are made from time to time, based on the returns from the Internal Revenue office, police and other places, hospitals, insane asylums, poor-houses and other charitable institutions, from which it is calculated with reasonable certainty that our liquor bills yearly amount to not less than: Direct expenses, $900,000,000; indirect expenses, $600,000,000; intemperance burns and destroys property amounting to $10,000,000; it destroys 70,000 lives; it makes 30,000 widows; it makes 10,000 orphans; it makes 500 maniacs; it instigates 250 murders; it causes 500 suicides; it consigns to jail 500,000 criminals." And, greater even than all this it endangers the inheritance of liberty left us by debauching voters and making instruments for upholding corruption by means of the ballot-box. Hence we see the overwhelming power and trouble caused by this great curse.

The habit is like a person fastened by a thread, at first easy to break. After awhile the thread increases in volume to a rope, and is still harder to break, and lastly to that of a cable with all its strands woven and interwoven closely till its victim is in its powerful grasp and carried on to a drunkard's grave—and all point to it as the last resting place of disgraceful man. The ladies of our country can exert a great influence in putting a stop to so much of this damnable traffic. If every lady would resolve that the one who uses liquor to excess should never wait on her, I dare say we would soon see a change. To be used as a medicine, I have no objection, I have no objection, as it is valuable there. In conclusion, distilled liquors are a poison, dangerous and deadly; and of comparatively modern origin. Their use is productive of more diseases, mental, moral and physical than that of any other known agent, and produces an immeasurably greater number of deaths. Their use affects not only the user himself but his progeny to the third and fourth generations. To license men to sell this poison as a beverage, under any pretense, is a crime against social order, humanity and God. If these hastily written thoughts shall cause some poor wayward soul to stop and think before he is lost, and benefit him, my mission is accomplished. Hoping that it will, with God's blessing, I now stop.—Butler County News.

Center Shot.

John Wilson shot Jay Hayeraft through the heart at Litchfield last Wednesday night, killing him instantly. The Sunbeam gives the following account of it.

"On Wednesday night about 9 1-2 o'clock, the Woosley mansion was the scene of another horrible shooting affair. The participants were Jay Haycraft and hump-backed John Wilson. Both are citizens of Grayson county. As best we could learn, the particulars are about as follows: Both men were at the house and wanted to see the same girl, Mary Jane Woosley, an inmate of the house. But such was impossible. Jay then asserted his rights, and went for his pistol, but in failing to get it he picked up an iron bar and started for Wilson, who was at the time outside of the house. When he reached Wilson he told him if he wanted anything to fight in. Wilson's reply was of such nature as to cause Haycraft to strike him. Haycraft struck him several times before he had a chance to shoot. Wilson pointed the pistol at Haycraft and fired. It was a center shot, as the ball entered his heart, killing him instantly.

Wilson was taken to jail and is now awaiting trial. Haycraft's remains were taken to the Denton House for the night, and were removed by his relatives on Tuesday morning.

Haycraft was badly shot in the same house about one year ago, by R. G. McClure, and came near dying.

The Woosley house is a place where some very nauseous affairs take place, and is a disgrace to the town of Litchfield. The town authorities should give that house their attention, and see if they can not do something for the good of the town.

James Hankins, who was Shot at a Fourth of July Picnic, at Jericho, Dead.

James Hankins, who was shot in a fracas at Jericho, a little village in the north part of Logan county, at a picnic on the Fourth of July, died last Thursday night from the effects, at least in part, of the wound. The circumstances which led to the difficulty were of a very trivial character, being, we understand, about some water or a glass of lemonade; resulting in the final death of two men. A railroader had a lemonade stand at a picnic, and he and Hankins got into a dispute, and the railroader knocked Hankins down, whereupon Hankins, who was a frail, delicate young fellow, "riz a shooting," as an old darkey who was present expressed it. A number of shots were exchanged, and the railroader was killed outright, and Hankins so badly wounded that he died. The shooting took place right in a crowd of men, women and children, and the great wonder is that several were not seriously wounded. —Muhlenberg Echo.

Miller Weir, Colored, Attempts to Ravish a White Woman at Gordon's Station.

One day last week Miller Weir, a colored section hand, working on the section West of town, attempted to commit an outrage on the person of Mrs. Froman, wife of one of the section hands at Gordon's station. The negro approached the woman and grabbed her around the waist, when she struggled loose and ran and hallooed. The hand-car happened to come along just at that time, and the hands heard her cries and went to her relief. The negro ran and got his trunk and left, but subsequently returned when the section boss, instead of killing him, gave him a cursing, and he again left and has not been seen since.—Muhlenberg Echo.

The Evil of the Age.

People talk with bated breath of the dangers of a tornado, and speak of the terrible accidents of this year in various sections, by which over two hundred lives have been lost, and yet the same men stand listless and inactive at the cry of sixty thousand men and women who are annually sacrificed by strong drink. It is well enough to dig cellars in which to hide from the fury of the storm, but who will deride the fathers and mothers who desire protection from the great scourge of intemperance, sweeping broadcast from the earth, its hands red with murder, and its voice made up of curses? The man or woman who asks protection from such a monster iniquity should not be regarded as either a crank or a fanatic. There is no mistaking the fact that intemperance is the greatest evil of the age.—Hawesville Democrat.

ENTERPRISING people are beginning to learn the value of advertising the year round. The persistency of those who are not intimidated by the cry of 'dull times,' but keep their names before the public, will surely place them on the right side in the end.—Democrat

How to Stop a Paper.

The following from one of our exchanges so fully and clearly expresses our views on the subject that we copy it without comment: "You have an undoubted right to stop a newspaper when you feel so disposed, upon the payment of all arrearages. Do not hesitate to do so on account of 'tenderness' for the editor. Don't you suppose that he would stop buying sugar of you, or meat, clothing, dry goods, etc., if he thought he was not getting his money's worth, and why should you not exercise the same privilege with him; and when you discontinue a paper do so manfully. Don't be so spiteful as to throw it back to the postmaster with a contemptuous "I don't want it any longer!" and have 'refused' written on the margin, and have the paper returned to the editor. No gentleman ever stopped it in that way, no matter if his head is covered with gray hairs he should be honorable. If you do not longer wish to receive a newspaper, write a note to the editor like a man, saying so—and be sure that all arrearages are paid. This is the way to stop a newspaper."

Mr. M. J. Jackson, 4567 High street, Louisville, Ky., says: I used Brown's Iron Bitters for kidney troubles and dyspepsia and found it good."

Reunion of Company A 1st Kentucky Cavalry, C. S. A.

Recently it was suggested by some o the survivers of Company A 1st Ky. Cavalry, C. S. A., that there should be a reunion of the old company at Sugar Grove, in Daviess county, on the 29th of September, 1883. It affords the Executive Committee, who was charged with the task of arranging for the proposed reunion, pleasure to announce that its efforts have been enthusiastically seconded not only by the surviving members of the old company, but by the citizens of the surrounding community. The committee is prepared, at this early date, to say, and the announcement is now officially made, that the reunion will be held as proposed at Sugar Grove on the 29th of September proximo. Everything necessary to make the occasion a success as well as a pleasant convocation has been done. Preparations to entertain at least five thousand people have been fully and carefully arranged, while the appended programme is made after the speakers, whose names appear upon it, have been conferred with and promised positively to be present. And to this reunion all ex confederate soldiers, without regard to the command in which they served, and the public generally are cordially invited.

A camp for the rendezvous of the old command will be established on the 26th of September to continue until after the 29th. This feature of the reunion it is believed will prove not only pleasant but useful to the old soldiers many of whom have not met each other since the war. At all events the opportunity will be presented to rescue from a rapidly approaching oblivion, many facts worth preserving as history.

The committee has arranged for a suitable number of tents, and other camp furniture, as well as "three days rations."

Let every living member of the old company report himself for duty on the afternoon of September 26th. Let none be left behind with the "wagon trains."

PRESENT POWER.

The Morrow a Long Way Off When Help is Wanted To-day.

Comfort is never in a hurry. Pain and distress are in fast haste. It is to the "friend in need"—the friend who does something now—that the old adage pays the compliment of being "a friend indeed." That they do not keep the sufferer in suspense is the safest excellence of BENSON'S CAPCINE PORous PLASTERS. The plasters of other days—whether porous or otherwise said "Wait until to-morrow;" we can promise nothing on the spur of the moment." But pain unrelieved, like time deferred, maketh the heart sick. Benson's plasters act on application. They permeate, soothe, warm and heal, containing, as they do, chemical and medicinal agents of the highest efficiency. Their motto is Now, and the genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of each plaster. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. 37 1t

RHEUMATISM!

Immediate Relief in all Cases by

Dr. Rush's Blood Root Oil

Cured of Rheumatism in 2 Hours.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2, 1882.

Dr. Rush's Medical Association:

Gentlemen—I have been troubled with rheumatism for two years. I tried all the best advertised oils and liniments, and many first class physicians without relief. The last Dr. I visited recommended Dr. Rush's "Blood Root Oil." I purchased a large bottle for fifty cents, and applied it. In two hours I was relieved and now I am entirely well. Its effects are wonderful and I believe it is the only thing in the world which will cure rheumatism. Truly yours,
